IOT Networking
Connecting people, processes, and applications to enhance communications on land, overseas, and in the air. Using a collection device without the need for human involvement such as smart appliances and wearable tech.

Wireline Network Connectivity
Let's get you connected with our highly secure reliable internet. That has minimal latency, ethernet backhaul, LTE long term evolution, fast HSPA technology, and carrier aggregating.

Fiber Internet
Fiber-optic internet, commonly called fiber internet or simply "fiber," is a broadband connection that can reach speeds of up to 940 Megabits per second (MBPS), with low lag time. This technology uses fiber-optic cable, which amazingly can send data as fast as about 70% the speed of light. In addition, fiber-optic cables are not as susceptible to severe weather conditions as other types of traditional cables are, which helps minimize outages. It also resists electrical interference effectively.

SIP Conferencing
SIP enables users to establish, maintain, modify, and release multimedia sessions. Sessions may transfer information in one direction such as paging systems, sound systems, video surveillance systems, and similar. Simultaneously it can transfer in both directions (full duplex), such as phone calls for audio or inclusive video.

Software Defined Wide Area Network also known as "SD-WAN"
Elevate network and traffic management away from hardware and premises to the next generation software in the cloud for enhanced agility, control, and visibility.
